

Crisis Leadership: Dealing with Disasters from Asia to Africa and America

Terrorism. Tsunamis. Earthquakes. Epidemics. What do they have in common? Each is a crisis. Each requires an urgent response. Each demands leadership to recover and rebound. But what is crisis leadership? When does it succeed? What makes it fail? Crisis Leadership answers these questions by drawing on examples including the 9/11 terrorist attack on New York, the authors tsunami experience, Japans tsunami, Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines, Haitis earthquake, genocide in Sudan and the latest Ebola outbreak in West Africa that is now threatening the world. This timely and controversial work will appeal to anyone keen to understand the many crisis we face, what we can learn from them and how we can respond in creating a better, safer world.
